Wednesday, February 6. 1723.

London, February 6.
Yesterday arrived a Mail from Holland.

Moscow, December 30.

THEIR Czarish Majesties are expected at Moscow against the approaching Lent. 'Tis said that Prince Menzikoff is fallen sick, and that the Duchess of Mecklenbourg has hopes of succeeding in her solicitations in behalf of the Duke.

Berlin, Jan. 23. On the 19th instant the King of Prussia caused his Ministers to be assembled, and ordered the Baron d'Ilgen to read to them a written Paper, containing the Alterations which his Majesty has thought proper to make in the Administration of his Revenues. The entire Scheme is not yet made publick; but 'tis said, that the Management of the Finances is to be entrusted to four Commissioners, of equal Power to each other, and to preside by Turns in their Assembly; M. de Grumkow is named first in the Commission, and in some Degree is considered as the Chiefest of that Body: Each is to have the peculiar Direction of Affairs in a distinct Province, according to the Division made of his Prussian Majesty's Dominions; that is to say, M. de Grumkow is to have the Management of the Revenues of Prussia and of Pomerania; M. Kraut, that of Brandebourg, Magdebourg, and of Halberstadt; M. Kruits, that of Minden, Meuts, Lingen, and of Tecklenberg; and M. Gorn, that of the Countries of Cleve, and Succession of Orange: These four Commissioners are also to have under them, their Assessors, Secretaries and other Officers, to whom Rules are prescribed for their good Conduct in the Execution of their Offices. M. de Jagozinski returned hither two Days ago, and proposes to set out from hence To-morrow on his Journey to Moscow: He has lately been at Frankfort and at Mayence; and also to visit the Prince of Hessen Hombourg. He gives out, that his Journies to those Places were only with a View of getting into the Czar's Service some able Workmen, and chiefly such as have skill in Mines; to which end, 'tis reported he offered 10,000 Crowns to one Kreutz, a Person expert in the working of Mines, but would not go to Russia. Yet some Persons are of Opinion, that his Motive for going to Mayence was chiefly to confer with the Elector concerning the Imperial Title which the Czar claims, and to employ Arguments and perhaps Gifts also to persuade that Elector to deem the Letter from the Emperour Maximilian, (upon which the Russians lay their chief Stress in this Business) as a Piece Authentick beyond Contradiction. And, as to his Visit at Hombourg, 'tis the general Opinion he went thither to negotiate a Match between a Prince of that House, and one of the young Muscovite Princesses.

Berlin, Jan. 30. The King has been present in Council every Day since the late Regulations in the Ministry: His Majesty designs to return next Week to Potsdam. This Court is gone into Mourning for the Death of the Margrave d'Anspach. The Muscovite Minister M. Jagozinski, set out Yesterday for Moscow.

Copenhagen, Jan. 30. The King has given Orders for recruiting the Troops, and to augment them with four new Regiments: The Fleet also is required to be in a readiness, in Case of any Attack the ensuing Summer. The Russian Minister still solicits to have the Czar's Claim to the Imperial Title acknowledged by this Court, and to obtain free Passage for his Master's Ships through the Sound, without paying the usual Toll.

Hague, Feb. 3. Prince Gallitzin, who is going to Spain, to reside in Quality of Minister from the Czar, set out from hence some Days ago on his Journey thither by Way of France. The next Meeting of the States of Holland continues fixed to the 10th instant, to put an End to the Affair of paying the Debts of North Holland; those Debts amount to two Millions, and are to be raised upon the whole Province; in which Case, there is to be hereafter no more than one Office of Receipt, that of North Holland being to be united to that of South Holland. Yesterday all the Money that was found in Cash in the late Receiver-General Hogendorp's Office, was removed to another, and committed to the Care of the First Clerk of that Office, under Direction of the Council of State, till the Process against the said Hogendorp is finished.

Hague, Feb. 9. M. de Chambery, the French Secretary here, has notified to the States General, that a late Arrêt published at Paris, forbidding the Importation into France of English Lead melted in this Country, has been suppressed according to their Desire, and that their Merchants are at Liberty to act therein as formerly. The said French Secretary has obtained the Restitution of three Parts of the Sum to which the Sale amounted of the French Ship retaken from the Algerines by M. Someldyck two Years ago; the other Part is adjudged to the Chamber of Admiralty of Amsterdam, for contingent Charges.

Amsterdam, Feb. 12. Advices from Constantinople say, that the Turks have taken the Sophi of Persia Prisoner, and carried him to Bagdad, where he is treated according to his Rank; that the Porte has ordered the Bashaw who has him in Custody, not to deliver him up to his Enemies: And that Miri-Weyz has proposed to the Grand Signior, that in Case he will assist and support him in the Government of Persia, he will conclude an advantageous Treaty of Commerce with the Porte, will yield several Provinces to its Subjection, and will end the Sophi's youngest Son to be brought up in the Mahometan Religion, to whom he will afterwards resign the Kingdom when he shall be of Age to govern by himself.
